Some other publishers and societies

IEEE

There are many bogus journals and conference proceedings
(Ask your supervisor to refine your references)

Two common styles of referencing:

“IEEE” style

paper or a chapter:

[1] Smith, J., Novak, M.: “Paper Title”, in proceedings of IEEE Conf. on Artificial Intelligence (CAI 2014), IEEE press, New York, 2014, ISBN:..., pp.1504-2554

A Book

[2] Smith, J., Novak, M.: Book Title, IEEE press, New York, 2014, ISBN:..., pp.1504-2554

Web page:

[3] van Rossum, G., Drake, F. L. (eds): Python Reference Manual, Python Labs, Virginia, USA, 2001, Available at <http://www.python.org> (retrieved on March 2013)

Example of “IEEE” use:

In work [1], the authors show ... Further enhancement regarding ... was published in [2].
We used Python [3] for implementation.

APA referencing style

Some journals use APA style (less easy)

<http://www.apastyle.org/learn/quick-guide-on-references.aspx#In-Text>

Smith, J., Novak, M. (2014a): “Paper Title”, in proceedings of IEEE Conf. on Artificial Intelligence (CAI 2014), IEEE press, New York, ISBN:..., pp.1504-2554

Smith, J., Novak, M. (2014b): Book Title, IEEE press, New York, SBN:..., pp.1504-2554

van Rossum, G., Drake, F. L. (2001) (2: Python Reference Manual, Python Labs, Virginia, USA, Available at <http://www.python.org> (retrieved on March 2013)

Example of “APA” use:

Smith and Novak (2014a) show ... Further enhancement regarding ... was published by Smith and Novak (2014b).

We used Python (van Rosum et al., 2001) for implementation.
